The bridges built for peace and demolished in the war:
The "bridge of Pasha" in Grevena (Greece) blown up by the British in the Second World War (1941)

So it was demolished before

So it is today

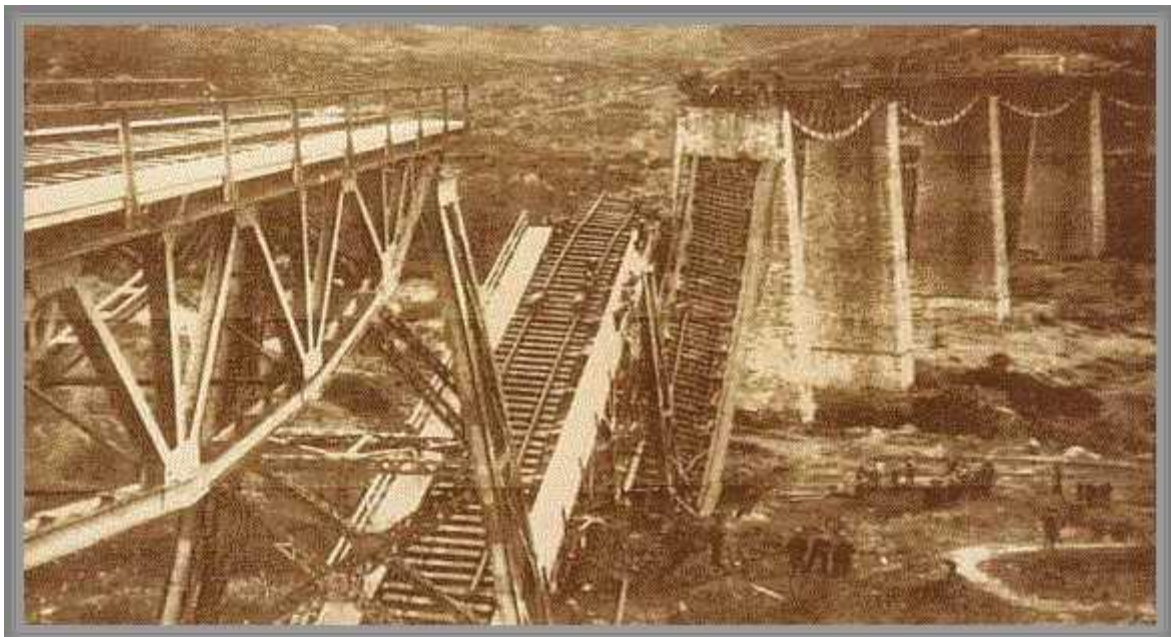

The bridges built for peace and demolished in the war:
The blowing up of the bridge Gorgopotamos (Greece) on 25 November 1942 by Greek and British, was the top act of resistance during the German occupation.

So it is today

So it was demolished before

3RD PRIMARY SCHOOL GREVENA, GREECE
